“ We weren't close as many of you were but it was always a pleasure to run into him when we were downtown. Thoughtful and generous to a fault, it's sad to think I won't find him at a table at one of the establishments we both enjoy. Wish I'd had a chance to say goodbye, David.

“ My heart aches from the sad news of David's passing. He was a kind, generous and supportive gentleman. One of the most intelligent individuals I have known and always eager to advise and help others. I learned a great deal from David. He loved to share a fine bottle of wine and conversation with friends. I consider myself blessed that he shared so many insightful and thought provoking discussions with me. He will be dearly missed by so many who admired and adored him.

“ Dave was such a wealth of information and so intelligent that a mere conversation left you feeling a few IQ points stronger. He will be missed dearly.

“ David was complex. Discovering those complexities was exciting and often surprising. I'm sad that he is gone, too short a time! A favorite memory was having him join my family for a noisy game of Cards Against Humanity after Thanksgiving dinner.....who knew? He took me on a surprise trip to dinner and the Muny...who knew? Hours of discussions and an amazing wine education...everybody knew. He laughed til he almost cried when he had me try a wine described as having tones of scorched earth...I should have known! The tour of the Old Cathedral was inspiring as was the tour of the MO Capital. And Annie Gunn's! These barely scratch the surface. He was smart, funny, intense and a gentleman. I will miss him.
